Council Endorses New Parking Rules

Safeway Engineer Writes Cameron Only City Not To Cooperate

Councilmen unanimously passed the Police Committee recommendation report in its. entirity at their meeting Tuesday night.

The $4.00 monthly parking permit became a matter of record and a special meeting early in the week was proposed to pass another amendment to the Parking Meter Ordinance, which will enable parkers to pay a 25 cent fine if they "pay up" within two hours after the ticket is issued.

Other parking regulations that will be made mandatory now that the new restrictions have been approved by the city fathers are: (1) The officer charged with the duty of Checking meters should not be the meters from vehicle owners nor put coins into meters from any other source to save the violator from a parking ticket; (2) Parking meter violators should have a ticket issued by the enforcing officer at the time of the violation regardless of Who it may be; (3) The Mayor should be granted the authority if he does not now have same to grant temporary parking priviledges when, in his opinion, it would be a public service; (4) The City Legal department should be instructed to enforce the law against violaters who refuses to pay violation tickets, to the fullest extent of the law, and (5) That no law enforcement officer be allowed to fix a ticket for any reason, and that the Mayor himself and only acting as the Judge of the Corporation Court be allowed to excuse any ticket if he deems it wrongfully given.

At the outset of the two-and-one half hour meeting Milton Schiller urged that the Mayor hold the councilmen to discussion of the items of the agenda to expedite the meeting. Mayor O. B. Horstmann neither declined nor accepted the request, merely stating that he felt that extra sidelights brought into a matter helped the council to form its conclusive decision.

After voting to pay Hillyer $25.00 for surveying the two small tracts of property in connection with the Mondrik exchange of property rights to facilitate the laying of city water lines, the city streets emerged from the agenda, with various problems discussed by the council for the remainder of the session.

First up for discussion was the matter of working with Postmaster John Hays is opening up alleys necessary for mail delivery, between Highway 77 inside the city limits and Crockett street, which have been closed and are being used by the home owners adjacent

Wives Feted To Dinner – Musical Program At Kiwanis "Ladies Nite"

Kiwanis wives were royally entertained with a barbecued t-bone steak dinner and musical program Thursday night at their first Ladies Night program.

Robert Nelson started the evenings program with the invocation.

After dinner Wiley Loughmiller, club president, gave the welcoming address and introduced Earl Curtis, master of ceremonies.

Little seven year old Danny Ray Kelly was then seated at the piano (on a soda pop box so he could reach the keys) and played several numbers, starting with "Melody of Love" and "Mr. Sandman". He was then joined by his little brother, David, four years of age, who, in a resonant voice enhanced with a baby lisp that couldn't quite pronounce the letter L, sang "Count Your Blessings" and "Sincerely".

Danny, an accomplished pianist, adding touches of his own to popular numbers, then played "This Old House" followed by amedley of requests, "Down Yonder in New Orleans.', "Tweedle-Dee", "Davy Crockett" and concluding with some expert "Boogie".

A trio of thee high school girls, Yvonne Storey, Joyce Wallace and Wilma Baldridge, then sang several numbers, accompanied by Frances Michalka at the piano.

Earl Curtis then made a few remarks followed by a closing thank you by Loughmiller, who stated that the Kiwanis hoped to have Ladies Night at least three or four times every year.

In charge of arrangements were Earl Curtis, Dr. Charles Howard and Dr. John Boyce.

May Bringing Good Supply of Broilers, Fryers To Market

Mrs. Alice G. Hughes, County Home Demonstration Agent reminded that May is bringing a good supply of broilers and fryers to market. Housewives can look for low prices.

Uncooked chicken needs to be carefully refrigerated and stored to guard against spoilage, according to Alice G. Hughes, Home Demonstration Agent.

Buy fresh chickens only from markets where it is carefully handled and held under ice or refrigeration. Get it home and into the refrigerator as soon as you can. If you buy dressed chicken, draw it and clean giblets promptly.

You can expect fresh chickens placed in a refrigerator just below the freezing unit (35 to 40 degrees) to keep for two or three days. Giblets will keep one or more days if you place them near the freezing compartment. Cover loosely with waxed paper or aluminum foil before storing in refrigerator.

Frozen chicken keeps well for six to twelve months stored at zero temperature — at higher temperatures, enzymes become active and hasten the development of off flavor and color. In the ice cube or freezer section of a refrigerator (15 to 20 degrees) frozen chicken may keep from two to four weeks.

An Appeal for 101 Days of Safe Driving

During the summer months—from Memorial Day through Labor Day—highway traffic fatalities are high. So high that the Governors' Conference has endorsed a nation-wide safe driving program during the 101 days between the two holidays.

Only you, the motorist, can make this campaign a success . . . If you, and every other highway traveler, will resolve to drive at a safe speed, to follow the recommendations of Safety Associations for safe highway driving, literally hundreds of lives will be saved during this summer's travel. One of them may be your own.

Wherever you drive this summer,
PLEASE DRIVE SAFELY

Safety Associations recommend that you follow these simple rules for a safe vacation trip:

- Observe all posted speed limits; don't hurry, ever.
- Regulate the speed of your car to highway and traffic conditions.
- Don't drive too long—stop when you're tired.
- Observe all highway caution warnings—slow down for curves, when descending steep hills, etc.
- Don't drink when driving.
- Follow the golden rule of traffic courtesy: give other motorists the same consideration you'd like for them to give you.

THIS WEEK IN THE CLINIC

Dr. J. E. Boyce
D. C.

Your body is on a 24 hour shift. It has to run nite and day - from birth until you start collecting Social Security. No matter how perfect your body machinery was at birth, certain parts are apt to show the effects of wear and tear, stresses and strain. In order for this body machinery or organs to run efficiently it must be checked regularly for wear and tear and necessary adjustments made. Take the several new cases who entered the Clinic this week, they were examined, analized, x-rayed and accepted for a series of adjustments.

1. Migraine Headaches.
2. Stomach & digestive trouble.
3. Gall Bladder trouble
4. Arthritis.
5. Nervousness
6. Sciatica.

Daily notations and reports.

Migraine Headaches Case 252. Had Migraine headaches for 6 years. X-rays taken - cause located - adjustments given - results: No immediate change after adjustment on Monday - Tuesday, head some better - Wednesday Headache gone - Friday no pressure in neck - head clear.

Stomach & Digestive Trouble Case 236: Condition existed for 2 years - medication failed - X-rays taken - cause located - adjustments started - Results: Felt more relaxed after adjustment on Monday - Tuesday had hardy breakfast without discomfort. Bowels moved normally. Thursday, no digestive disturbances, more relaxed, eating well. Saturday had slight return of stomach trouble, however felt much better.

The above cases are still under adjustments and will be for some weeks - however it will interest you to know that people DO RESPOND to adjustments and do get well under chiropractic - The critics will criticize and take no time to investigate, will hurry off and stay sick - while a few will investigate and be benefited in their health problems.

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER WORRIED OVER SUGGESTION EXPERTS GET OUT AND SHOW THE FARMERS HOW TO FARM

Editor's note: The Little River Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Marlow is unnecessarily worried this week, but apparently he'd rather worry than work.

Dear editar:

According to an article I read in a newspaper last night which my wife had spread on the floor to keep from tracking mud in after a little rain some time back, some experts in Washington have been thinking over the farming problem and have come to the conclusion the trouble with farmers is they aren't efficient enough, they don't produce enough stuff per acre.

To remedy this, one of the thinkers said it might be wise for the experts to get out in the field and show the farmer how to grow more per acre.

I'd like for you to know I don't believe the situation is bad enough to require such a desperate remedy.

In the first place, I don't know any experts who are hankering to get out in the field and plow, if they were inclined in that direction they wouldn't be experts. Most experts I know, with a few exceptions, got that way to avoid plowing.

And in the second place, I don't know any farmers willing to turn their plow in over to em.

It's sort of like economists. Business men listen to speeches by economists at conventions telling how business will pick up by three and two-tenths percent by September, but don't many of em hire em to run their outfits. Every time they try it, something goes wrong with the profit department.

Understand, I'm in favor of economists and agricultural experts, but they want to stick to their own departments.

However, this particular group of experts I'm talking about may be smarter than we realize.

If most farmers thought there was any likelihood they'd have to turn their farms over to an expert if they didn't get more efficient, things would pick up considerably, although not necessarily in my case.

If anybody wants to come out here and show me how he can make more per acre offthisfarm here and show me how he can make more per acre off this farm than I'm doing, he's welcome to it. There's the tractor sittin over there where I left it three weeks ago.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Serious Danger Ahead If Insects Continue Increase

According to Wilson Produce Company, it has been reported that there are large numbers of insects infesting the crops. There are reports of Boll Weevil, boll worm, aphids, fleahopper, stink bugs, rapid and tarnished plant bugs, cut worms, beetles, tomato bugs and melon insects of most all kinds. In fact, it appears there might be serious danger ahead if the insects increase in sufficient numbers.

The cantelope and watermelon growers have been using Lindane to combat the insects. This being the most popular one with some using more streneous insecticide.

The tomato growers use DDT and Copper dust mixture for best results. Tomato growers have been forced to use insecticides since early this season as insects have been bad from the start. However, from a different angle, it might be said that the outlook for the tomato crop is very good and prices are expected to be above the average.

Cotton farmers use almost as many different kinds of cotton insecticides as there are kinds of cotton. Some use 3-5-40 mixture, some 60 per cent Toxaphene liquid, 20 per cent Toxaphene dust, BHC, 20 per cent Toxaphene and 40 per cent Sulphur is also popular, as are parathion liquid, Aldrin Dieldrin, Benzene Hexachloride and many others. It is suggested that if you don't know what type insecticide to use, that you contact someone who is a specialist and knows just what to do.

Bell Solar Battery May Become Standard Equipment

If tests of an improved Bell Solar Battery are successful this summer, the device may someday become standard equipment along rural telephone lines around Cameron, according to C. L. Carson, manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

During the year since it was unveiled, the Bell Solar Battery — man's first successful device for converting sunlight directly into substantial amounts of electricity- has been almost doubled in efficiency.

When the battery was announced by Bell scientists on April 25, 1954, it had a 6 per cent efficiency. Today this has been increased to 11 per cent — comparable to the efficiency of a gasoline engine.

Models of the improved battery will have their first test as part of the telephone system this summer at Americus, Georgia, where experiments will determin the battery's usefulness in powering amplifier stations or rural telephone lines.

Bell's Solar Battery is a simple looking device made of wafers of specially prepared silicon, one of the world's most abundant elements. (Junior gets filthy with silicon every time he wallows in his sandbox.)

To produce the batteries, Bell scientists dope silicon with arsenic, then force in a foreign element called boron. Getting this boron into the wafer in just the right amount is very exacting. It's done under gas at high temperatures, and the process is so closely controlled that the boron reaches a depth of less than 1-10,000th of an inch.

This thin layer of boron and the rest of the silicon wafer form is known as a p-n junction, the heart of the battery.

Linked together electricially, the improved wafers can deliver power from the sun up to 100 watts per square yard of silicon surface.

Although the Bell Solar Battery is a relatively new device and still in the research stage, small ones being produced at Bell Laboratories hold great promise for future use in communication systems having small power requirements. Indications are that these batteries can be used as power supplies for low-power portable radios and similar equipment by charging the storage batteries during hours of sunlight in sufficient amounts to carry through times of darkness or cloudiness.

Sub - Hospital For Cancer Bill Reaches Senate

Senate Bill 344, providing that the state operate a Cancer Hospital in Southwest Texas as a substation of the M. D. Anderson Cancer Hospital for Research, Houston, will be discussed in the Senate of the Texas Legislature next week.

According to a spokesman for the Pan American Cancer Foundation San Antonio — sponsors of support for the new cancer hospital, "for 10 years a large group of cancer patients have been asking the Pan American Cancer Foundation, Inc. in San Antonio to sponsor a cancer hospital and increased research of cancer. Two - hundred cancer patients have already voluntarily subscribed $26,000 for the building of this institution and a number of wealthy people have promised to support the building of this institution in a substantial way if the bill is passed by the State Senate and it is approved.'.

According to the Cancer Foundation spokesman, a prominent San Antonio doctor, "This is the first time we have ever heard of a group of people who are suffering from a disease and are willing to build a hospital for others who may become afflicted."

The Foundation contends, the State Senators are not thoroughly acquainted with the interest exhibited by the people of Texas who want this hospital. It urges that Texans write, wire or send a post card immediately to their State Senator to insure that the legislation is passed.

"Dr. H. R. Heller, head of the National Cancer Institute in Washington wired the Pan American Cancer Foundation February 26, 1955 that if this proposed institution were built, it would be eligible for research beds and additional training for treatment of the 54,000 cancer victims of Texas," stated the Cancer Foundation spokesman, "There are now 160 charity beds in the M. D. Anderson Hospital and they are totally inadequate to care for the mass of charity patients among the victims."

The State Senator for this area is Jarrard Secrest, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bailey from Lexington were recent guests in the home of Mr. Bailey's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gib Terry.

Traffic Recording Device To Be Used In Central Texas

A traffic recording device that looks like a speed trap but isn't will be in use on Central Texas highways this month, D. C. Greer, State Highway Engineer said in Austin.

Designed primarily to record the location of vehicles on the highway the machine is on loan to the Highway Department from the Bureau of Public Roads, and is operated by bureau personnel from Washington assisted by Highway Department personnel.

While the machine does record the speed of vehicles, its primary purpose is to determine vehicle distance from the center stripe and the edge of pavement on various highway widths, Greer said. Data when compiled will also give a good indication of the passing habits of motorists on different widths of roadway.

The recorder will be used at a different location each day in Travis, Bastrop, Lee, Williamson, Gillespie, and Mason counties, and Greer sated.

In compiling the data on Texas driving habits, the bureau personnel is working with Highway District 14 (Austin) and with the Planning Survey and Design Divisions. When the material is completed it will assist the Department in determining the relative values of various pavement widths in terms of highway economy, safety, and the comfort of drivers Greer stated, and will be of value in the planning for future highways and improvements on present roads.

The Health & Safety Committee went over meeting place inspection reports and set up plans for health examinations for scouts before going to summer camp at Camp Tahuaya.

Thirty men were in attendance from Rosebud, Marlin, Cameron, Sharp, Milano and Rockdale. Following the meeting refreshments were served by the Rosebud Scouters.

Hammond Voices Against Increase On Gasoline Tax

The presdent of the Texas Farm Bureau's calling on the 60,000 member families of the organization to rise up in protest against efforts to increase the state sales tax on gasoline from four to six cents a gallon.

In a letter to all county Farm bureau presdents J. Walter Hammond called for immediate acton on the part of the county leaders to defeat the proposal.

"Let me urge you to get your legislative committee together and start a movement to get your Farm Bureau members to oppose this tax," he said. "Also explain to them what is about to happen to the people in the cities, who are not organized, and encourage and insist that they, too, write letters and send telegrams to their repremost unfair and inequitable tax."

Hammond said the Farm Bureau legislative staff in Austin reported a concerted effort on the part of the adminstration, Highway Commission, trucking industry, city and county governments and the oil and gas industry to increase the present tax.

"At the same time," he said, "there is a move on foot in Washington to increase the two-cent federal tax on gasoline to four cents, which would make a total of ten cents a gallon."

He also stated that there is a move to lower the tax on natural gas.

"The need for additional funds for highway purposes has been grossly exaggerated," the state farm leader said. "Everything goe by comparison, and Texas is well supplied with highways as compared to adjoining states."

Hammond said that increased revenues, if needed, should be obtained from other sources.

"The proposed increases in the gasoline tax would be all out of proportion to the taxes levied on natural resources," he asserted. "Since gasoline sells at the refinery for 11 to 12 cents per gallon, the proposed increase to 10 cents a gallon would amount to a tax of 83 percent on gasoline as compared to a 9 percent tax on natural gas, a tax that will drop to 7 percent in September, 1957."

The Farm Bureau leader said that a tax on natural gas would be to the best interest of Texas because "two-thirds of that tax would be paid by people outside the state whereas the citizens of Texas would pay all of the tax on gasoline."

Hammond charged that the Highway Commission "like all other government agencies, is determined to expand its operations."

He said it was easy to see why the trucking industry was backing the gasoline tax increase.

"Because of the nature of the tax, automobiles and light vehicles subsidize the trucking industry," he asserted.

"The gas and oil industries are pushing the tax on gasoline for a very obvious reason," Hammond said. "If the 10-cent tax is not levied on gasoline, the alternative would be to raise the tax on natural gas and oil."

He charged that oil and gas companies oppose an increase on their commodities because such a tax would eliminate their opportunities to mine the gas and oil here in Texas and ship it to the four corners of the earth almost tax free.

Is Your Car Accident Prone

"Is your car accident prone?" Vice-President, Employers' Casualty company and President, Texas Safety Association, Inc. asked that question of Texas drivers today, and he warned them that they could not answer it accurately if they had not had their cars safety checked recently.

Mr. McFadden spoke in behalf of the vehicle safety check program which is recommended by the Texas Safety Association, Department of Public Safety and the National Safety Council.

"It is the civic duty of every driver to see that his car gets a complete mechanical check-up," Mr. McFadden said, "because a car in unsafe mechanical condition is a menace to the community."

He added that only a check of the 10 major safety points by a qualified mechanic can give a car a clean bill of health. He listed the 10 points as follows: brakes, headlights, rear and stop lights, tires, wheel alignment, exhaust system and muffler, windshield wipers, glass, horn, and rear-view mirror.

In addition to periodic professional checks, Mr. McFadden advised drivers to check constantly for obbious danger signs such as: loss of brake efficiency, excessive tire wear, unsatisfactory windshield wipers.

"At the first sign of trouble," he said, "the conscientous driver will have the necessary repairs made. Such foresight can save his own life and the lives of others."

Second Annual Journalism Award To Be Given By Bar

Some journalist or radio or television commentator will be $250 richer as a result of his work this year in connection with the science of jurisprudence and the administration of justice.

This will represent the second annual journalism award given by the State Bar of Texas. Applications cover work published, broadcast or telecast during the 12 months ending May 31, and all applications must be in not later than June 5.

William E. Pool of Austin, Secretary of the State Bar, said his office is receiving applications from representatives of every medium of public information, including free lance writers, radio and television newscasters and college journalism students.

Pool said the factors to be considered in determining the winner include understanding of problems and matters discussed; appreciation of orderly processes of justice and fundamental constitutional safeguards and the dangers or reliance upon unqualified persons in legal matters; constructive nature of approach to matters discussed; tendency of material to encourage and promote respect for law and courts and to advance the objectives of the State Bar.

The judging committee will consist of three lawyers, appointed by consultant.

Presentation of the award, Pool said, will be made at the annual convention of the State Bar in Dallas, June 30.

Old Cotton Belt Association Is Soliciting Members

Memberships are beginning to pour into the Old Cotton Belt Association's main office at La Grange, Texas, with 33 counties reporting up to Saturday, May 14.

The association's goal is 50,000 members.

State and county directors have not set a deadline for securing members, but directors and officers said "time is an important element and the members must be acquired as quickly as possible."

The association has a three fold aim: (1) It is working to secure fair and equitable acreage distribution; (2) It seeks an elective state board for the ASC: (3) It wants to provide protection for the farmer and to promote more export business.

This organization does not conflict with any other farm organization in Texas, but it is just what it says, the Old Cotton Belt Association of Texas. President Lawson Rivers of Elgin said that the organization is striving to secure 50,000 members so that Washington knows that it means business.

PARKING RULE — to the former alleys.

It was decided that members of the street committee would talk with the residents in that area in an attempt to open a wide street through that section to the Maysfield road. No definite action was taken until it can be ascertained whether or not a street can be made available, with the street committee authorized to work with Hays and make arrangements for opening one alley to faciliatate mail delivery.

Councilmen then approved by motion the request of P. W. Davis to lay a concrete slab between his warehouses if the slab is kept in conformity with the street level and water drainage maintained.

Next, a letter termed "unjustified" by the council and Mayor, from Orin Metcalf, an engineer doing preliminary work for the proposed new Safeway building on the Temple Highway, was read. H stated, at length, that this was the first city that had not cooperated with him on plans to induce new industry into the city.

Although no definite action was taken on the letter councilmen had a difference of opinion on what "technical services" Metcalf was referring to. Clifford Thom[illegible] stated that he and other members of the street committee had gone over the property with Metcalf, whose field notes were so inaccurate that he couldn't even find the property. Thompson thought that Metcalf was just mad because the city wouldn't do his engineering for him.

On the other hand, it was the understanding of Grady Stidham, head of the Street Committee, that Metcalf was referring to the steets surrounding the Hendrson proprty where the site for the new store is, and maintained that an engineer should be kept on the payroll at all times to give assistance to those desiring technical information.

Metcalf, by letter, stated that the city refused information on grades, walks, street structures, etc.

Next street problem to hit the table was the possiblility of widening, curbing, guttering, and putting permanent paving on 10th and 11th streets if the property owners would share the costs.

Stidham reported than many residents on those streets hsd approached him and asked if it would be possible to pay for the paving over a five year period.

Conversation on the paving halted when it was suggested by a councilman that the city change engineers. He recommended that the council use a local man and asked Kelly to terminate his services.

The motion was withdrawn when the Mayor quietly suggested that the matter needed more thought by the council, and changing engineers might incur added expenses.

Councilmen voted that the City Hall will be closed on all seven of the holidays outlined by the Chamber of Commerce, including Memorial and Labor days.

They also decided to purchase a new flag for in front of the City Hall on holidays.

Following the reading of two letters of appreciation, one from John Duke to the city for letting the scouts use Ledbetter Park for their camporee and the other from Dr. George Bowman, head of the Health and Sanitation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, for the city's cooperation in the recent clean-up campaign.

Street committee members were then authorized to ask the general public owning vacant lots to clean them of weeds and debris and erase any possiblity of fire hazards and enhance the general appearance of the city.

Final item of business was the matter of vandalism at the swimming pool and buildings in Ledbetter park. At the conclusion of the discussion on what will be done to those found destroying that property it was decided that all of the members of the Police Committee will ride in the Patrol car some Saturday night to check on the activities of youths in the city.

Moore Gives Tips On Hard To Control Insects

Farmers should not be discouraged with their results in controlling thrips in their cotton after one application of insecticide. There is an unusually heavy infestation of thrips this year. Fields examined over the county show good control in some cases, to less than 50 per cent control in many cases regardless of the insecticide used.

Farmers are advised to continue their poisoning schedule at seven days intervals as recommended in the cotton insect guide. One quart of DDT; ½ pint of Heptachlor; ½ pint of Endrin; ½ pint of Dieldrin; ½ pint of Aldrin or 1 pint of Toxaphene per acre is recommended for Thrips control.

Due to unsettled weather, some farmers are using 1 pint of Toxaphene plus 1 pint of B. H. C. to give a quicker kill. B. H. C. used alone has given erratic results in controlling thrips.

Dieldrin used at the rate of ½ pint per acre did a better job in controlling thrips at the Lubbock Station last year.

Judson Womble of Caldwell was a business visitor in Cameron Wednesday.
